✓ ST. REGIS EVERBEARING RASPBERRIES. This is truly an ideal raspberry for the home garden or commercial grower. The fruit is large, firm and meaty, deep red, and good quality; the plants are hardy and will not winter kill. They bear fruit in fall of the same year set out and a heavy crop the following spring, then again in the fall, until frost. I have tried other varieties without success. Three years ago I set a few St. Regis for the family use. Now I am growing them for market. They ripen early, just after the strawberry season closes, which makes them in demand at good prices. The everbearing strawberry has been much advertised and caused some disappointments, but with me this Raspberry has them beat both for fruit or profit.

Price—twenty-five 50c; hundred $1.75; thousand $15.00.

A certificate of nursery inspection goes with every order.
